

THE 2012 BROWN, GOLDSTEIN & LEVY DISABILITY RIGHTS FELLOWSHIP

In September 2009, Brown, Goldstein & Levy, LLP welcomed its first disability rights fellow. We are now accepting applications for our fourth annual Disability Rights Fellowship to begin in September 2012. The Fellowship offers a recent law school graduate or judicial clerk with a disability the opportunity to participate for a year in all phases of disability rights litigation at our firm in Baltimore, Maryland. Brown, Goldstein & Levy is a 16-lawyer law firm devoted principally to litigation. The firm has developed a national reputation for its high-profile, high-impact disability rights cases. Information about Brown, Goldstein & Levy, including our past and present work, is available at www.browngold.com.

Terms of the Fellowship

The Fellowship is available to recent law school graduates (0-3 years post-graduation) with a disability. The term of the Fellowship is one year. Salary and benefits will be commensurate with the salaries paid and benefits provided to non-Fellowship Brown, Goldstein & Levy attorneys of equivalent experience and qualifications. The firm offers health insurance, group life insurance, and group disability insurance. The Fellow should be a member of a state bar or be planning to obtain admittance to a state bar.

Application and Selection

Applicants must have strong academic credentials, excellent writing skills, and a demonstrated commitment to disability rights. A completed application will consist of the following:

1. a cover letter, no longer than two pages, explaining the ways in which you meet the selection criteria;
2. a copy of your law school transcript, including an explanation of your institution's grading policy;
3. a legal writing sample with a cover page indicating the source of the sample, any editing or contributions by persons other than the applicant, and the legal citation style used;
4. a current resume; and
5. a list of three references, including name, relationship, and contact information.

Applications must be received no later than November 15, 2011. Please submit your application by e-mail to info@browngold.com or by mail to:
