Amazonians celebrate Black culture by joining the Bud Billiken Parade in Chicago

The annual Bud Billiken Parade—also known as “The Bud”—has been a celebration of African-American culture in the Chicago area since 1929, while connecting the community to resources that promote education and empowerment. This year, the WW Stores DEI team and BEN sponsored the event, allowing Amazonians to join in an official capacity for the first time. The parade just hit its 93rd year this month, and over 80 employees from Amazon’s Chicagoland network volunteered to pass out 450 backpacks packed with school supplies, along with 2,000 parade giveaways, and fruit from Amazon Fresh. Employees also had the opportunity to walk in the parade alongside Chance the Rapper’s celebrity DJ, DJ Oreo, who kept the energy and excitement high.

Amazon Only Hiring Event with St. Sabina Employment Resource Center

A special shout out and a HUGE Thank You to Sharon Miles and all out the partners at the St. Sabina Employment Resource Center for setting up an Amazon Only Hiring Event. We had over 200 candidates come out and create Amazon jobs accounts. We were able to help them navigate the website and if they found a shift, we were able to help them complete the application. Candidates came ready to apply, and we were able to answering any questions they had. It was a great turn out!
