

Join Reingold for a Discussion on the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped Library of Congress

Share Your Thoughts!

You are invited to participate in a discussion on how you think people who are blind and physically disabled can best learn about the Braille and Talking-Book Program.

We have seats available for eight participants and two alternates and a special gift for those who take this opportunity to share their ideas and insights. In addition, a light dinner will be served.

Eligible Participants

We are seeking feedback from people who are blind, have low vision, or have physical disabilities that prevent them from reading or holding traditional books, especially veterans, students, and seniors.

We also need to hear from caregivers of people in these groups. You do not need to currently use NLS services to participate.
