THE PHOENICIA STORY

The dream began modestly in 1983, when Arpi and Zohrab Tcholakian, Armenians from Lebanon, opened Phoenicia Deli, a small Mediterranean delicatessen in West Houston. The son of a Lebanese grocer, engineer Zohrab convinced Arpi to avoid his assured pink slip and instead pursue the family passion for food, when the Houston oil industry collapsed in the 1980s. So, Arpi and Zohrab combined their talents and their strong work ethic, and began sharing the foods they grew-up with to their growingly diverse community. As their loyal following grew, they further expanded by establishing Phoenicia Specialty Foods in 1992, a market specializing in Mediterranean, Middle Eastern and European foods, with a mission to produce, supply and import specialty foods at down-to-earth prices, both to retail and wholesale customers. Today the Tcholakian family continues the dream by acting as an international urban hub & marketplace in Houston, Texas and the Southwest.
