Getting to Altamonte Springs

Altamonte Springs is a suburb located just north of Orlando. While it does not have its own intercity bus or train stations, nearby Orlando does. As a result, reaching Altamonte Springs typically begins with traveling to Orlando. This section outlines the main transportation options available for getting to Orlando from across Florida, including bus, train, and air travel. In the next section, getting to the Hotel, more information about the specific Orlando stations will be provided.

Orlando International Airport (MCO)

Brightline trains can reach speeds of up to 150 miles per hour, providing a fast and comfortable ride. As of now, the Brightline route includes the following cities:

- Miami
- Aventura
- Fort Lauderdale
- Boca Raton
- West Palm Beach

Amtrak

Amtrak is the national passenger rail service, operating in 46 states, including Florida. In addition to its train routes, Amtrak also offers chartered motor coach services that connect passengers from cities not directly served by train stations to the nearest Amtrak stops. For those attending the convention in Altamonte Springs, the nearest Amtrak station is located in Winter Park, just a short ride from the Hilton Hotel. Amtrak operates two long-distance routes that travel through Florida:

reach the Altamonte Springs SunRail station, which is located near the convention hotel. For more details about using SunRail to reach the hotel, please refer to the SunRail subsection in the “Getting to the Hotel” section.

Greyhound

Greyhound is one of the oldest and most well-known intercity bus companies in the United States. - Arcadia
- Barto
- Daytona Beach
- Fort Lauderdale
- Fort Meade
- Fort Pierce
- Gainesville
- High Springs
- Hollywood
- Jacksonville

- Kissimmee

FlixBus

FlixBus is a relatively new addition to intercity bus services in the United States, offering budget-friendly fares and environmentally conscious vehicles. The company has rapidly expanded across Florida and is now a convenient option for reaching Orlando. FlixBus owns Greyhound and often

Getting to the Hotel

Once you've arrived in the Orlando area, your next step is reaching the Hilton Hotel in Altamonte Springs. This section provides options for getting to the hotel from the main arrival points listed earlier in this guide. For public transportation, the listed options are not an exhaustive list; there are other ways to get to the hotel from your respective bus station.
