

Clusiv: Unleashing the Potential in the Workforce for and with the Blind

Join us on Thursday March 16 at 11 AM Eastern Time for an informative Zoom workshop and discover how to get involved. Zoom info to join is at the bottom.

Who is Clusiv

Clusiv is an online learning platform made for and by the blind. We help to remove barriers to employment through occupational and technology skills training. Our eLearning platform is accessible, intuitive, and our content teaches to JAWS, Zoom Text and Fusion. We are also building career track courses to give concrete skills towards a variety of jobs. Plus, you get lifetime access to our content to stay up to date with trainings on business softwares for the modern workforce and can access it online from anywhere.

What to Expect.

- Learn about Clusiv's online learning programs and how they remove barriers to the modern workforce for the blind
- Join a movement to demand higher wages for blind workers and empower ourselves in settings of high-wage employment
- Discover how you can participate in professional development courses and web development training
- Explore your boundless potential as a blind person by harnessing your intelligence and tenacity, propelling you towards a fulfilling, high-paying career.

Here is who you will hear from!

Luke Simianer: Army paratrooper and wounded veteran, became a software engineer after the military and then founded Clusiv.

Bruce Sexton: 2018 law school graduate, international advocate for the blind, main plaintiff in transformational Target.com accessibility case, and proud father of two kids.

Alanna Clancy: Former D1 soccer athlete and elementary teacher that now uses her competitive drive and passion for education with Clusiv to help the blind community.
