

Seattle Commission for People with Disabilities

You Can Make a Difference

The Seattle Commission for People with Disabilities is a newly established volunteer body that will advise the Mayor and City Council on issues affecting people with disabilities.

The City is seeking fifteen dedicated and passionate individuals to serve as Commissioners.

What are Commissioners' responsibilities?

Stay informed about current issues, legislative activities, policies, and laws that affect people with disabilities;

Provide information and recommend policies to the Mayor, Seattle City Council, and City departments on issues of importance to people with disabilities; and Help foster understanding between people with disabilities and City government.

What are the time commitments?

Commissioners must be able to devote 10 hours per month to Commission work, including monthly Commission meetings, interaction with government officials, and community events.
