To Whom It May Concern,

The way that the book is laid out is it includes the company name, contact information, website address, and a short description about the company.

I have created a screen reader-friendly West Virginia Resource Handbook containing resources pertaining to the blind and visually impaired, for use by consumers and professionals.

This handbook is for the residents of West Virginia and includes the many organizations for the blind and visually impaired covering areas such as employment, housing, transportation, and more.

The handbook includes contact information on the local, regional, and national level.
