

Jennifer Keelan-Chaffins

Jennifer Keelan-Chaffins is a passionate advocate and activist for disability rights. She joined the disability rights movement at age six and at age eight she participated in the famous "Capital Crawl" protest to support the passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act. In 1990, she received the Americans With Disabilities Act Award from The Task Force on the Rights and Empowerment of Americans with Disabilities.

Jennifer received her GED in 2002 and received her Associate of Arts Degree in 2008, before earning a B.S. in Family and Human Development from Arizona State University.

Today she's an educator and a motivational speaker; and together with her new illustrated biography "All the Way to the Top", How one girl's fight for Americans with disabilities changed everything; she does educational speaking presentations to teach the next generation the importance of the ADA, the Capiol Crawl, and the disability rights movement in American history with a emphasis on education, advocacy, and self-empowerment.
