

Instructor/Coordinator Visual Impairments Teacher Preparation Program

The candidate will have the full range of responsibilities associated with being a an instructor and coordinator of a program at a research university such as teach graduate courses in special education-visual impairments and blindness; advise and supervise teacher certification and masters students in special education; conduct the teacher preparation program in vision impairments/blindness; pursue external funding; contribute to area, college, and university governance; and collaborate to deliver professional development activities statewide with lead agencies, schools, and stakeholders in vision impairments/blindness.

Earned doctoral degree in Special Education or related area with emphasis in children and/or youth with visual impairments and blindness preferred. Required qualifications include earned masters degree in Special Education or related area with emphasis in children and/or youth with visual impairments and blindness; teaching at the post-secondary/higher education level; ability to advise and supervise practicum experiences for licensure and graduate students; established record for delivery of distance-education coursework/training; proven track record for collaboration with state and local education agency personnel such as state schools for visual impairments/blindness, departments of education, and local school districts.

Criminal background check required. Excellent benefits including staff/dependent scholarship program. Applicant review will begin April 10, 2009. Apply at <https://employment.unl.edu> requisition 090131 and attach required documents.

The University of Nebraska has an active National Science Foundation ADVANCE gender equity program, and is committed to a pluralistic campus community through affirmative action, equal opportunity, work-life balance, and dual careers.