

LinkedIn: Amazon is #1 company where Americans want to work in 2022

Amazon recognized as the most desirable workplace in the U.S. for the second year in a row. The ranking is based on our ability to attract and retain talent, including the career advancement opportunities we provide for employees of all backgrounds.

Amazon is the #1 company where Americans want to work in 2022, for the second consecutive year—according to LinkedIn. Amazon ranked first on LinkedIn's Top Companies list, an annual list which identifies the most sought-after places to work in the U.S. Using data from LinkedIn's 810 million members, LinkedIn's Top Companies list is designed to help professionals identify the best companies to grow their careers. Their methodology evaluates how companies are able to attract and retain the best talent—including promotions, opportunities for employees of all backgrounds to gain new skills, gender diversity, and even how much recruiters from other companies search for employees currently working at Amazon.

A look at Amazon's sustainability efforts this Earth Month

Amazon teams are working hard every day to invent, create, and collaborate with each other and our business partners to help the company become more sustainable. This Earth Month, we're highlighting the progress we've made as we continue to look ahead—because we know it's just the beginning.

Amazon and more than 300 other companies are now committed to reaching net-zero carbon by 2040. Since 2019, The Climate Pledge—which was co-founded by Amazon and Global Optimism—has grown to include hundreds of companies like Microsoft, PepsiCo, and Visa that have all committed to work together and take bold steps to decarbonize and fight climate change.

Amazon launches employment support program for refugees

A new Amazon program offers resources and support for refugee and humanitarian-based immigrant employees, including a citizenship assistance portal, free legal support, and mentorship.

Amazon has launched the Welcome Door program, a new initiative to provide refugee and humanitarian-based immigrant employees with additional resources and support, along with reimbursement for Employment Authorization Document (EAD) fees. The program also offers employees access to upskilling opportunities, including free college tuition and English as a Second Language (ESL) proficiency through the Career Choice program.

MDW – North and Central Community Engagement

MDWN this month has formed a partnership with Goodwill. They are going every two weeks to help candidates create accounts and fill out applications. There has been a great show rates to these events, and has made the candidate experience even easier. This is a great opportunity to be able to really help our candidates in person with choosing the locations and also answering any question they might have before their new hire event (NHE), so we can assure they attend their NHE ready to get all the information needed for the day 1.
