

Martin Luther King Jr. Day

Every third Monday of January is Martin Luther King Day, commemorating his birth date on January 15, 1929. Dr. King was the leading advocate of nonviolent activism in the Civil Rights Movement, which opposed racial inequality in federal and state law. He was an extraordinary leader, with vision, ambition and fought tirelessly until his last days against injustice. By fighting for his dreams and against injustice, he powerfully impacted generations and changed the world. In 1963 Dr. King helped organize the March on Washington, an assembly of more than 200,000 people at which he made his famous “I Have a Dream” speech. The march influenced the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and King was subsequently awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. President Lyndon B. Johnson signed the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which prohibited discrimination in public places, provided for the integration of schools and other public facilities, and made employment discrimination illegal. Soon after Dr. King's murder in 1968, a movement to establish a federal holiday in his memory was launched. The holiday was officially enacted in 1983 by President Ronald Reagan, and it was celebrated for the first time three years later. Dr. King wrote, spoke, marched, and stood up for what he believed in and this federal holiday lets people honor his life, work and encourages all of us to volunteer to improve our communities.

Mental health resources for Amazonians

Whether you are looking for free counseling sessions, financial or legal consultations, or want to connect to a community, support is available.

The Employee Assistance Program (EAP) is the place to start for any mental health question or concern. It is a free and confidential service available 24/7, and accessible to all Amazonians and their families, beginning on their first day of employment. Through the EAP, you have access to services including mental health counseling, end-to-end support for finding high-quality care, major life event and everyday living support, and financial and legal assistance.

International Holocaust Remembrance Day

In 2005, the United Nations General Assembly designated January 27 – the anniversary of the liberation of the Auschwitz death camp – as International Holocaust Remembrance Day (IHRD) to honor victims who died and suffered during the Holocaust.

Community Engagement Volunteer Opportunities

Our Amazon team is looking to give back to the community. Due to a decrease in Amazons projected labor orders we are scaling back from hiring events until next year to help make time with supporting volunteer events within the community. Please reach out to us with any possible volunteer opportunities that you would like Amazon to be apart of.
